

three botanical haiku

John Ryan

supernova

the brittle bud burst apart leaving only these petals of glass shards

first

new faint yellow tufts
under trident banksia
were dandelions

when I broke

honeypot flowers—
gathered up the pieces and salved my sore sutures